The Rush to Get Away From Galveston Subsides.

STATUS OF YELLOW FEVER.

While the Situation Is No Worse at New Orleans There Is No Rift Through the Clouds of Depression and Death.

Galveston, Oct. 13.—The situation in Galveston is hopeful. It is agreed that the fever is of a mild brand and not to be feared. There were 60 cabin passengers booked to leave on the New York steamer, that being the only way to get out of the city. Thirty of these passengers canceled their engagements and did not go.

The board of health issued a bulletin declaring the cases to be of a light type, and stating that 11 cases have been reported, all told, and that these 11 are either recovering or convalescent. The first mail since Saturday night has arrived—three tons of it.

The principal lines are bringing freight here and are being allowed to return their box cars north, so the export business is progressing. No freight is yet allowed to go north. Free communication was established between Houston and Galveston.

It was decided by the board of health to be unnecessary to close the schools. Dr. H. A. West of the board of health reported that Isadore Mayer, a fireman, 46, living at Thirty-seventh street and Avenue P, has an absolute case of yellow fever.

YELLOW FEVER.

No Deaths Reported at New Orleans Early in the Day.

New Orleans, Oct. 13.—The fever situation grew no worse here. But at the same time there is no rift yet howling through the clouds and the promise is not bright for an immediate re-opening of the avenues of industry. Daylight had hardly come before two oaths had been announced, but the other fatalities had gone down on the books when night fell. The cases are, as usual, widely scattered, and have increased somewhat the total number of cases under treatment, but at the same time there have been a large number of cases discharged, and the death percentage has suffered a fall. The names were Joseph Collette and John Giles.

There has been for some time a general impression that the fever was confined solely to the houses of the poor, but it has likewise found its way into the houses of the rich, and there are handsome mansions on Jackson avenue and other fine residence thoroughfares from which the ugly red and yellow flag hung.

Of the new cases, those of Mrs. Hunter C. Leake, wife of the general agent of the Illinois Central railroad, of James R. Anderson, a prominent supply agent, representing eastern houses, and of Mrs. Eakin, wife of the superintendent of the Standard Oil company, are said to be of somewhat mild type.

Houston Quarantined.

Houston, Oct. 13.—The city woke up to find itself in quarantine, with the declaration of State Health Officer Luegert, based on the statement of Dr. Guiteras, that four cases of yellow fever existed here. The public schools were not opened, and that fact created some alarm. Few trains left town and were well filled. The cases were completely isolated. The city health officer carefully investigated several cases called to his attention by physicians, but pronounced all of them negative. All four cases are isolated; no new ones were found. No trains are running now except one between here and Galveston.

Fever at Mobile.

Mobile, Oct. 13.—There were three new cases of yellow fever brought to light in the past 24 hours. No deaths occurred in the past 48 hours. Total cases to date are 129; deaths, 20; discharged, 72; and under treatment, 37. There were three more cases reported on the steamer Kate, lying at Magazine point, three miles above the city. Hospital will be established there by the quarantine board of Mobile bay and the ship disinfected.

Will Resume Business.

New York, Oct. 13.—The Lone Star steamship company, which held last Friday's steamer on account of yellow fever in Texas, has decided, on receipt of news favorable to the raising of the quarantine to dispatch the steamer Miami on Saturday next with a freight held over.

Old Board Re-elected.

New York, Oct. 13.—The stockholders of the Erie railroad met here and elected the old board of directors, who will meet in a few days for the purpose of reorganization. The annual report of the company makes the total assets $290,558,205, with liabilities the same amount.

Tired of Life.

New York, Oct. 13.—Henry Ingram, 44, a lawyer of Brooklyn, was found lying dead in the street with a bullet wound in his temple. By his side lay a .32-calibre revolver, with which it is believed he took his own life.

ATTORNEY MEIVEN

Finishes His Speech to the Jurors In Luetgert Case.

Chicago, Oct. 13.—Assistant State's Attorney McEwen finished his argument in the Luetgert trial and will be followed by Attorney Phalen, who will make the opening address for the defense.

Mr. McEwen took up the entire day with his argument, and went over the case carefully, connecting the details of the evidence for the jury and showing how one circumstance fitted into another, and how the whole mass of evidence submitted by the state furnished in his opinion, a full and complete circumstantial chain proving that Luetgert had murdered his wife in order that his relations with his servant girl, Mary Sternberg, might remain undisturbed.

Throughout the entire argument Luetgert listened to the speech of the attorney who was asking for his life with the greatest attention. He never took his eyes off McEwen for an instant, and the heavy scowl that is habitual with him deepened as the state's attorney pointed out circumstance after circumstance that weighed against his innocence. It is now practically certain that all the arguments will be finished so that the case will be given to the jury by Sunday night at the latest.

During the afternoon session of court Assistant State's Attorney McEwen devoted a considerable portion of his time to the gold rings found in the middle vat in Luetgert's sausage factory. These he styled "the indestructible and shining evidence of his guilt." "The purest metal known to man," he said, "had come forth from that vat unburnished to fasten upon the guilty person the responsibility for one of the most hideous and cruel crimes modern times had produced."

Then the speaker shifted to the evidence of the bone experts and dissected it skillfully, pointing out what he considered the weaknesses and inconsistencies in the stories and identifications made by each. Then he reviewed the circumstances in the case from the date of Mrs. Luetgert's disappearance up to the present date. Each development was recalled and fitted together in a logical manner.

The speaker suddenly reached the descriptive climax by exclaiming: "There, gentlemen to the jury, you have the complete foundation and structure of this case. The chain of facts is connected. The links naturally coil around this defendant, and fix his guilt as plainly and as indisputably as it is possible to fix guilt."

New York, Oct. 13.—The managers of the Joint Traffic association have made a commodity rate of $1.10 per net ton on stone from Chalfants, O., to Wheeling, W. Va.

GIBSON IS RELEASED.

New York Parties Decide Not to Prosecute Him.

DIDN'T INTEND TO DEPRAUD.

The Hotel Man Upon Whom the Worthless Check For $400 Was Passed Exonerates the Promoter From All Blame.

New York, Oct. 13.—Emmet C. Gibson, the promoter, vice president of the Akron Street Railway and Illuminating company, and said to be associated in business with General Samuel Thomas and J. B. Clews of New York, who was recently arrested on a charge of attempting to pass a worthless check for $400, was discharged. The complainant, R. B. Stimson, auditor of the Hotel Netherland and Imperial, said to Magistrate Hedges that he did not believe that Dr. Gibson had any intention of defrauding him.

Gibson lived at the Imperial. He offered in payment of his account there a check on which payment was refused, and his arrest followed. In court Gibson showed letters from prominent business men of this city certifying to his good character.

PLAN OF CONSOLIDATION.

Representatives of Two Patriotic Societies Agree to Unite.

Cincinnati, Oct. 13.—A plan of permanent union of two patriotic societies, so nearly similar in name and purpose, has been agreed upon. They are the National Society of the Sons of the American Revolution and the General Society of the Sons of the Revolution. Both societies met in separate session and adopted the plan of union prepared by a conference committee, with some amendments.

The Sons of the Revolution came to a conclusion after a long debate in which considerable opposition developed. The name agreed upon is the Society of the American Revolution. Membership is to be limited strictly to lineal descendants of soldiers of the American revolution.

The constitution adopted and the plan of the union are to be submitted to the several state societies of both organizations by a committee of five from each national organization for approval. When approved by a majority of the state societies, these committees are to call a convention of the members of both organizations to launch the new one in existence. Dr. Gallaudet of Washington, D. C.

Colonel Waring Declines.

New York, Oct. 13.—Colonel George E. Waring, street cleaning commissioner, has declined the nomination of the Jefferson (Henry George) Democracy for controller. In his letter he says: "I thank the party for the honor or done me, but I cannot accept the nomination for the office of controller. I am very sorry I was not consulted about it before your action was taken. I should have told you that I would not give up, for the sake of becoming controller of Greater New York, the hope of continuing to direct the operations of the department of street cleaning until the plans now in hand for its improvement shall have been carried into completion."

A. S. EXPOSITION.

DRAWING PLANS PRESENTED FOR THE EVENT

BETHLEHEM TO REOPEN THE EIFFEL TOWER INTE
A. S. EXPOSITION.—Ninety-six Schemes Examined. Forty-five are from Foreign Countries. Only Two Adopted.

Messieurs Meunier and Maron of the third sub-committee for the Paris World exposition in 1890 have finished the herculean task of examining into the "new ideas" presented for realization at the coming event.

While it is true that most of the schemes spoken of in the newspapers are the very incarnation of idiocy, there are some which appear to deserve a less sweeping criticism than that exercised by the communists.

An amusing proposition of M. Bendix is to fix a huge mirror to the top of the Eiffel tower which would present a mirage of the larger part of Paris. Another huge mirror is to be affixed to the base of the tower in such a position as to reflect the mirage of the top mirror. In this manner the visitors to the exposition would have the opportunity to witness Parisian life without the fatigue and expense of participating in it.

The Eiffel tower, by the way, has caused so many would-be inventors to present fantastic schemes that to the latter the major part of the commission's report is devoted. M. Hunt proposes a six cornered building, 100 feet in diameter and 200 feet high, on the top of which sleigh races are to be held upon artificial snow. M. Banks has the idea of a gigantic candelabra whose three feet are to serve as promenades. M. Buffa advises the erection of two fountains, one representing a man and the other a woman at 200 times the average size, which would make this proposed inland pharos about 1,100 feet high. A patriot, M. Couchot, would have the Eiffel tower remodeled into a statue of France, the first two stories to serve as pedestal. M. Mazelagene proposes a house 1,000 feet in height in order to ascertain scientifically to what height houses may be habitable without danger.

A pyramid of 1,200 feet height revolving around its center is the ideal of John Richardson. As philosopher and philanthropist Gustave Songeux proposes two colossal statues, "War" and "Peace," whose contrast would cause all nations to declare in favor of peace.

For the sake of gallantry the proposition of Miss Josefa Hamse may be mentioned to revive the old wooden horse of the memory of the siege of Troy and to build a horse with "all the points of a blooded animal," which would have an interior capable of holding 1,000 people.

More prosaic and practical is the scheme of Mme. Raife to construct a mechanical elephant for the children and a tea fountain for the adults. The idea of swings flying 400 feet high, submitted by M. Gouss and Mr. Farnshaw, is old. More original is a project of Axel Shoot to construct a screw 600 feet high, along the threads of which a car would conduct visitors to a restaurant at the top.

Worthy of mention is the proposition by Prince Della Rocca and by Fernand Hau, the latter a Parisian journalist, to arrange an exhibit of religious art of all ages and also the project of Herr Fildermann to construct a miniature city under the protectors of Hygeia, which is to be inhabited by people who are to live strictly according to hygienic rules in order to study public sanitation. Both projects are seriously conceived and deserving of consideration, which is acknowledged by the commission.

M. Moron, in a separate report, states that of 96 schemes examined by him 45 came from foreign countries, which shows the interest taken all over the world in the coming exposition. Of these schemes only two have been definitely adopted—one of an electric platform, with two degrees of velocity, for the transportation of visitors within the exposition grounds (which is probably similar to the moving sidewalk on the pier of the recent World's fair in Chicago) and another of a captive balloon of 60,000 cubic feet, which can keep 60 persons in an altitude of 2,000 feet, also an idea known from Chicago World's fair.

The commissioner divides the schemes examined by him into eight series, the first of which comprises aquaria, vessels, naval engineering, etc., including a giant aquarium with 180 compartments and a colossal structure containing a cataract, a lake, promenades, cafes, bicycle rings, etc. The building is to be lighted by electricity and is to have walls of red glass to produce the effect of a marvelous sunset. The author of this project, which alone would cover the space of the entire exposition grounds, is Herr Eichbaum, from St. Petersburg—John Ehler in Chicago Times-Herald.

GENERAL NELSON A. MILES.

How proud the general of the American army must have been to see himself put in the "also ran" column.

General Miles has talked a good deal about the armics and maneuvers he saw abroad. He expresses himself as being especially well pleased with the French troops. General Miles is authority on such matters, and no ordinary observer will dare say him nay. But the average American traveler comes home with two pictures in his mind. Standing before a royal palace in Berlin is a sentry. He is a soldier. You can tell that without asking questions. He is erect. His moustache stands up like the kaiser's. His gun is presented at a perfect perpendicular. He is stanch, strong, self-contained, precise, correct, a model of uniform deportment and discipline. Standing before a barracks in Paris is a French soldier. You know him to be a soldier by his uniform, though he doesn't look like one. His gun is resting with its butt upon the sidewalk, leaning against the wall. The soldier himself is smoking a cigarette and coquettishly with a pretty maid near by. He is half a head shorter than the German sentry and weighs 20 pounds less. —Walter Wellman in Chicago Times-Herald.

BEWARE OF SMARTWEEDS.

A Bricklayer Is Seriously Poisoned by Them and Threatened With Lockjaw.
 John G. James, a bricklayer residing at St. Louis, was seriously injured recently. The hospital records diagnosed James' case as "colitis of the foot," which is the same as blood poisoning. James is not only threatened with blood poisoning, but also lockjaw.

James was working on a government building in Wagner, Ind., and got his left foot blistered. He did not think anything of the matter at the time, but several days later a brother workman threw a brick at him and hit the sore foot. This caused a painful wound, and he was laid up for several days. Finally, however, he concluded that he would try to go to work again.

One morning as he was walking to his work he stepped on a sharp stick which was projecting out of the ground in the path that he had taken. His shoe was split and the blister opened. James gave a yell and jumped to one side. He landed on a bunch of smartweeds that were covered with the morning dew. In a few days' time the poison set in, and he was compelled to come to his home. His foot recently began to swell in a rapid manner, and it was with extreme difficulty that he moved around. He recently applied at the City hospital for treatment, and Dr. Sutter saw immediately that blood poisoning had set in. He says that there is also danger of lockjaw, caused by the rust of the brick.—St. Louis Republic.

American Ships to Be Used.

The negotiations recently in progress among a number of capitalists in Philadelphia, New York and Boston, if successfully carried out, will result in the substitution of American built steamships for the large number of foreign built craft now engaged in the West India fruit trade. The new ships will be built here by the Crampes, who are largely interested in the undertaking, and will be speedy, first class vessels in every particular, calculated to reduce to the lowest time the passage between northern and West India ports. The new corporation will be known as the United States and West India Steamship Company and expects to be subsidized by the government as are a number of others of the American lines to the West Indies.—Chicago Times-Herald.

Charles Old Wheelbarrow.

Lawyer Everett Fowler of New York has presented to Miss Helen Gould, daughter of the late Jay Gould, the wheelbarrow with odometer attachment used by her father during the fifties in taking measurements of roads in Ulster, Delaware and other counties in that state when he was making maps. Mr. Fowler came across this machine in the garret of a farmer's house. He added it to his collection, but learning that Miss Gould had a fondness for articles owned by her father when a youth, gave it to her.

Jay Gould, judgin' by what old timers say, was a great pedestrian.

A former resident of Roxbury, Delaware county, says that Gould struck a trail on Saturday evening some time about the year 1853 and walked from that village over two ranges of mountains to Roxbury, a distance of more than 50 miles, reaching his home before day-light.—Exchange.

The negotiations recently in progress among a number of capitalists in Philadelphia, New York and Boston, if successfully carried out, will result in the substitution of American built steamships for the large number of foreign built craft now engaged in the West India fruit trade. The new ships will be built here by the Crampes, who are largely interested in the undertaking, and will be speedy, first class vessels in every particular, calculated to reduce to the lowest time the passage between northern and West India ports. The new corporation will be known as the United States and West India Steamship Company and expects to be subsidized by the government as are a number of others of the American lines to the West Indies.—Chicago Times-Herald.

THE TIMES-DEMOCRAT, LIMA, OHIO, WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 13, 1897.

We have just completed what mill experts claim to be the model oatmeal mill of the world. On the product of this plant we seek your judgment.

Try H-O each morning (it costs a family of five about two cents a day). Should your palate not prove it daintier, should you not feel better physically, or if it does not make more porridge than any similar product, a postal to the H-O Company, 71-73 Park Place, New York, will insure the prompt return of the cost.

HARRIS IS FREE.

He Called at the Bland Residence This Morning

TO SEE THE MAN HE SHOT.

The latter suffers but little pain from His wound but is keeping as quiet as possible—Notes from the Police Station.

After investigating the mysterious shooting affair which so nearly ended the life of William Bland night before last, Capt. Bell last night released F. M. Harris, who did the shooting, and the latter stepped, a free man, from the prison that he entered less than twenty-four hours before fearing that he was a mur-derer. Today he called at the Bland residence on north Main street to see his friend and victim of the shot he fired and was warmly greeted by the latter who was pleased to learn that he had been released.
Harris relates emphatically the story to the effect that he heard Bland at his window before he went to the door. He says that when Bland knocked at the door and he responded, he was excited about burglars and only half awake and shot before he realized what he was doing.
Bland suffers but little pain from his wound, but he has been at home since yesterday noon and is keeping as quiet as possible.

LOCKED UP AGAIN.

Frank Guinty, who assaulted Patrick O'Malley and knocked the latter senseless with a stone Sunday afternoon, was locked up again last night in accordance with orders from mayor Baxter. His bond was renewed during the evening and he was released during the night and allowed to go out on his run again this morning.

NOTES ABOUT THE STATION.

Dan Storer was locked up by patrolman Cretzinger yesterday afternoon for drunkenness.

L. T. Copp, of the city street force, has been appointed to guard prisoners who are sent to the city work house.

R. E. Carroll, Joe Santa and John McMillen, who were sent to the city work house Monday, for drunkenness, have been released.

LEADING PHYSICIANS

Endorse the Work of the Physical Department

At the Y. M. C. A. Gymnasium—Prof
Reeb's Advice to Young Men.

One doesn't know what he is going to run up against in this life.
Whether a life of ease or one of hard knocks. In all probability it will be for the most of us one of hard knocks.
It is a wise precaution to have an armor plate encasement. That armor plate is a hardened muscular system.

I causes us to thrill to the tips of our toes to hear words of commendation from the lips of some of our best city physicians in endorsing our physical department work. One of high standing mentioned that men he had advised to take a course of training in the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium were improving finely.

There is no more inspiring sight than to see young men developing and strengthening their bodies God has put in their possession for safe keeping. With the unsurpassed advantages that Lima possesses in its gymnasium and baths every man ought to maintain the machinery of his body in perfect condition.

Remember, men, it takes constant plugging away at it, but it pays rich. One thing is certain: if many of our young men, clad in their tailor-made business suits, were to have a quiet little chat sometime with a practical physician, we are confident their mode of living would see an immediate change.

Instead of spending every evening

A PETITION

To Ditch Hog Creek to be Presented to the County Commissioners.

Members of the City Council and the Mayor Met With That Body Yesterday Morning.

Several members of the city council and mayor Baxter met yesterday with the county commissioners to consider the Hog creek nuisance.

The importance of doing something to give the stagnant water in Hog creek an outlet was discussed by the city's representatives who stated that not only the people of Lima were interested in this but the farmers living along the germ laden stream.

They asked the commissioners to co-operate with the city in opening the stream and suggested that if they would open the channel at Shawnee bridge the nuisance would be greatly relieved since there it would be mingled with a large amount of water that a few feet below the bridge is received from the refinery.

The commissioners said they were willing to co-operate with the city, and that they had consulted the prosecuting attorney who informed them that they could do nothing unless a petition was presented. The board assured the council that should this be done they would take prompt action in the matter.

The city solicitor will prepare the petition, which will be circulated at once, and the commissioners will act as soon as the petition is presented to them.

was in the city again yesterday after-

and councilmen McVey, Morrison, Koch, Chapin and Snyder. He reported that he had made some progress in behalf of this city's effort to secure relief from dangerous railroad crossings, and that he was in favor of placing gates at the east Market and south Main street crossings, and favored placing watchmen at several other crossings.

He stated that the L. E. & W. people were ready to do their part, but that little had been accomplished with the P. Ft. W. & O. Certainly not.
What other result could be expected?

An Angel of Mercy.

Truly, the miraculous cures of rheumatism made by Salvation Oil, justly earned for it the title: an angel of mercy; for many bed-confined rheumatics have experienced the great curative properties of this modern liniment.

"I used Salvation Oil for rheumatism and found it a sure cure. I used three bottles and am now perfectly well, and I would feel myself a benefactor if I could induce every person afflicted with rheumatism to try Salvation Oil." James H. Bryant, Debruhls, N.C. Salvation Oil is sold everywhere for 25 cents, but some dealers may say, "we are out of it," hoping to sell a cheap substitute instead. Insist on getting Salvation Oil, or go to some other dealer who will sell it to you.

CAT AS GO BETWEEN.

STEWARTS HAVEN'T EXCHANGED A WORD IN EIGHTEEN YEARS

They Cannot Agree on Religion—The Wife Is a devout Methodist, but the Husband Is an atheist. They Have Never Quarreled.

There was a ranger around Matawan N. J., recently that old Jim Stewart and his wife had broken a silence of 18 years between them and were once more speaking one to the other.

Mrs. Stewart has borne a very heavy cross for many years and no one has ever heard her complain.

She is a devout Methodist. Her husband, to whom she has been married 36 years, is an atheist. For love of this man, whose views are so radically different from her own, she has consented to live and work that he might have a home, but for 18 years they have not exchanged a word.

All this time the two have lived in a tiny house where they were constantly thrown together, and yet each has carried on a separate existence.

The Stewarts live about three miles west of Matawan, on the road leading to Oldbridge. They have a farm of 12 acres, and this they have cultivated so carefully that, with the observance of much frugality, they have saved some money.

The wife is little, old, yellow and shrivelled. She was reared in the Methodist church, and when at 31 years of age she was married to John Stewart, he, too, was a God fearing man—a pillar in the Methodist church.

For many years they lived as happily as any man and wife could live, and then the serpent entered their paradise. It came in the form of the doctrines of anarchy, which the husband began to study. He became an enemy of law and order and loved to argue on the points of his new belief. Then he read Velutina and other writers opposed to the Christian religion, and next he was an atheist.

These departures into so called advanced thought were a great sorrow to his devout helpmeet, and gently did she try to win him back to the belief in which he had been born and bred. The husband resented these pleadings as the interference of the weak with the strong and thoughtful.

At first he would not listen. Then he argued, and finally he became angry. The woman wavered long between love and religious duty. Then she saw that her efforts to reclaim the backslider would be fruitless. He was a hard-headed man. No one had ever been able to lead him from an opinion once he made it.

The wife feared that her husband would cease to love her if she continued to play the missionary. She was afraid that he might leave her in obedience to one of his convictions.

So she made a compact with him. They were never to speak again. There could then be no quarrel at all, anything. He agreed that he should be exempted from what he called her nagging.

That was more than 18 years ago, and as yet they have not exchanged a word. The story that the couple had been raised proved not true. Mrs. Stewart told a reporter recently that there was no change in their relations.

It was true the old woman admitted that a cat had been their mutual dairy all the years of silence. Not the same cat all the time, she said, for cats would come and go but they had always had one cat after another to act as the go betweens.

If a meal was ready, the wife told the cat. The husband heard the message and sat at the table. If the man wanted anything at the table, he made his wife known to the cat.

And so it was day in and day out through all the years, no matter what the occasion might be. There has never been a quarrel. The farm belongs to the wife.

"Yes," said she yesterday, "I cook and wash for him. Why should I let him suffer just because he has gone astray? I will always care for him and he will have a home as long as I live. He believes he will die and that will be the end, the same as if he was a beast."

"It is awful to think of, but he will not change. I thank heaven that we have never had any children. I should probably not have been able to guide them aright. Very few children are properly raised."—New York World

Worked a Mule For Thirty-nine Years.

W. Q. Covington has a most extraordinary mule. He bought this mule when it was a yearling, just 40 years ago. When it was 2 years old, he had it broke, and from that day to this the animal has been in constant and continuous service and is regularly used now. The mule is fat, active and strong and shows no signs of its great age.—Richmond (Ky.) Register.

Indian Summer Song.

A luring song of locusts—the hymn of golden leaves. And you seem to hear the surf-waves through the shrill voices of the trees. And the haze, mazy, dreamy world around you seems like a dreamland haunted like a paradise of dreams.

Bliss smoke from happy buts. A ram of ripened nuts. And far away, o'er meadows ringing Sweet sound, as of a woman singing. "Colum through the rye—Colum through the rye!"

And then the faint, uncertain, silver tenor of a bell. That summons all the winds to prayer in many a clustered dell.

And then a thrush's music from groves with golden glances. The wild note of a mockingbird, and still the dreams!

Bliss smoke from happy buts. A ram of ripened nuts. And far away, o'er meadows ringing Sweet sounds, as of a woman singing. "Colum through the rye—Colum through the rye!"

SULLIVAN WILL RUN.

CANDIDATE FOR MAYOR OF BOSTON
A. S. T. QUINCY

The Present Mayor Would Not Shake the Big Fellow's Hand. A Deadly Insult For Which the Ex-Champion Planned an Ingenious Revenge.

"Yes, I'm going to run for mayor of Boston. And I want to get $1,000,000 to one shot, a horse to a high hair I weight 160 lbs. Let it all turn down Josiah Quincy, and I'm out to do him."

It was John L. Sullivan who did the talking. The big valiant was said at Wilmotman, where his show was held for the evening.

"What was in trouble between you and Quincy?" was asked.

"He threw me down," replied Sullivan, "at Fanny Hall the night of the Van Eyck reception. I struck out my hand, but Quincy don't see it. He thought it would be a good chance to make a little reputation of me. I heard Quincy make a speech that night, and say, on the level, I was sorry for the sucker. For a man who's the head of a big city and lets on he's away up, intelligent man, it was a bum speech."

"If I was as big a fool with my hands as Quincy is with his head, he'd never got the chance to omit to shake hands with me for prizefighter. No, he's dead weak. He's no mental heavy weight."

"But I'm goin' to do him," went on Sullivan. "The town's close, 5,000 either way, and you can buy a pool. John L. got friends enough in Boston to give Quincy a long lay off."

"I vote for the best man and I don't care a — for parties."

"Do you believe in making the national issues questions in the local campaign?" was asked.

"What's the bloody use?" replied Sullivan. "They've got nothing to do with the play. They ain't in it. Take New York, for instance. There's a town that's dead sick clean the night of reform. It turns up in 1895 and gets a lot of marks for reform, and it's got it in the neck. There's the Raines law. It ups and throws a mob of poor skates out of business, ruins the poor suckers, that's what it does. And there's Chapman out pinching those fools in the Tendolien. Say! He was off to do a thing like that. That's not right. There's plenty of local issues. What do you want to go dragging in outside rackets for to confuse a man?"

"I see you have views on city government," was suggested.

"Yes," retorted Sullivan. "I'm dead against monopolies and giving away franchises to companies. I think a city ought to own its franchises. Look at Boston, it's eaten up by street railway companies. New York's had better luck. But the corporations have got Boston by the neck all right, all right. A city ought to own them things itself, and not go giving them away to corporations for nothing, so. It's like giving a lot of mugs a rope to hang you with. You make those corporations strong by giving them things, and the first thing you know they jump and do

"Now, this mornin' I was readin' in the papers where the judges fixed bail at $6,000 for that sheriff and his men who shot down these Hungarians in Pennsylvania. Now, on the level, was that right?

"I tell you," and Sullivan shook his head and spoke with much hoarse solemnity—"I tell you, we won't live to see—you and me distinctly won't be in it—but the day's comin' when hell's goin' to pop in this country. There'll be a revolution. Look at all these British comin' over here and oppinn' off our industries. Those English mugs own billions of dollars' worth in this country. Do you think there won't trouble come out of it? We won't see it, but a day will come when there'll be a revolution, and the corporations and foreign landlords won't get a thing but the chase."

"Well, I can say then that you will be in the race for the mayoralty of Boston."

"You can put it in big type," replied Sullivan. "When I get through with Quincy, he'll shake hands with every prizefighter he sees. I've had better men than Quincy in the ring with me. I got my muscle at the same counter he got his brains at; paid the same price, too; the sucker ought to recollect that. And I'll beat him besides my hands haven't done half the dirty work his have; haven't been in on any such crooked plays as his. But wait until after election I'll be even"—Cor. Chapman Times Herald.

Could Hardly Get Around.

"I was all run down and had no energy. I became reduced in flesh and could hardly get around. The prescriptions tried did me no good and my wife advised me to take Hood's Sarsaparilla. Sheriff Fisher Arrests a Man Wanted in Kentucky.

UNDER AN ASSUMED NAME

The Fugitive is Found Registered at the Williams House Last Night---To be Taken Back to Newport, Ky., to Face His Accuser.

Sheriff Fisher and son, Dolt, last evening succeeded in arresting one of the eleven men who one night last week committed a dastardly crime in assaulting Mrs. Thor. Glasson, a lady who lived with her husband on a farm near Newport, Ky.

The crime was one of the most heinous ever committed in the state of Kentucky, and Governor Bradley and sheriff Plummer are making a strong effort to capture the eleven men who committed the assault on an innocent and helpless woman. Eight of the number have been arrested, and to sheriff Fisher is due the credit of having arrested one of the criminals, who fled to this city. The arrest was accomplished by some clever detective work on the part of Allen county's sheriff.

The person arrested was J. F. Moore, who was traveling under an assumed name—John Brown. Descriptions of the men who committed the crime were sent broadcast to the police departments of all large cities and to the sheriffs in the states adjacent to Kentucky, and it was from the description of Moore that the sheriff recognized his man. The sheriff discovered Moore last night about 10 o'clock at the Williams hotel, opposite the C. H. & D. depot, and together with his son went to that hotel about 11 o'clock and asked the night clerk if John Brown was in his room. The clerk informed the sheriff that he was, and showed the officers to Brown's room. The door was found open. Brown was awakened and informed by the sheriff that he should consider himself under arrest. The fellow seemed not at all surprised, and arose from his bed, dressed himself and accompanied the sheriff to the jail. He is a young fellow and makes a good appearance. He refused to talk about the crime or his arrest and keeps his own counsel. This morning the sheriff telegraphed sheriff Plummer, at Newport, that he had Moore in jail at this place.

In a very short time after sending the message, the sheriff received an answer requesting that the prisoner be held and that an officer would arrive in the city this evening or tomorrow morning to take the alleged criminal back to Newport. By making the arrest sheriff Fisher will receive a reward of $250, as that was the amount offered for the arrest of any one of the persons implicated in the horrible crime. It was the best piece of detective work done in this city for some time. It was scarcely an hour after the sheriff discovered the clew until he had the fugitive behind the jail bars.

DAN TURPEN,

The Alleged Slayer of William Harper, Captured

AT SAULT STE MARIE, MICH.

Was Recognized by a Traveling Man, Who Caused His Arrest—Taken to Piqua to Answer to a Charge of Manslaughter.

William Garvin, a deputy sheriff from Piqua, passed through here today enroute to Piqua with a prisoner who proves to be no other than Dan Turpen, who inflicted the wounds in the head of William H. Harper, formerly of this city, and caused the latter's death at Piqua, two years ago last July, a full account of which appeared in the TIMES-DEMOCRAT at that time. Turpen has just been captured at Sault Ste Marie, Mich., and is being taken to Piqua to answer to a charge of manslaughter.

Turpen's capture was effected through the efforts of A. G. Kerns, a traveling man, who knew Turpen at Piqua. Mr. Kerns was walking through some government lots at Sault Ste Marie on last Saturday afternoon at 1 o'clock and had his attention attracted to three men. He passed he recognized one of them as Turpen and turning around Mr. Kerns said: "Hello, Turpen." The man turned and with an expression of amazement, replied: "That is not my name." Mr. Kerns, however, was confident that he was not mistaken and succeeded in getting the sheriff and the members of the police force to shadow the man. He immediately telephoned sheriff Wilcox, of Piqua, and the reply came to arrest Turpen and hold him for future instruction.

Turpen was arrested and when searched several letters were found, one of which, addressed to a young lady in Canada, had not been sealed. It was written on stationery of the Turper House at Greenville, which a brother of the prisoner runs. This discovery led the officers to believe that Mr. Kerns was not mistaken in his identity. The officials at Sault Ste Marie say that Turpen had not been there but a short time. His companions relate the story that they met him in Canada about a month ago and that they formed a partnership in an advertising scheme. It is believed that Turpen has been staying in Canada the greater part of the time since he left Piqua.

Fifty Years Ago.

This is the way it was bound to look when grandfather had his "picture took." There were the shadows cast before the coming of Conjuror Daguerre and his sit; like a girl in a pinshore Some day to bloom to a goddess fair. Men certainly were not as black as we know As they pictured them, so years ago.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla began to make new men, just as the new pictures of men began to be made. Thousands of people fronted the camera with skins made clean from blotch and blemish, because they had purified the blood with Ayer's Sarsaparilla. It is as powerful now as then its record proves it. Others imitate the remedy; they can't imitate the record:
